In the `templates/index.html` file, a modification was made to the script tag that includes the Google Maps API. Previously, there were two separate script tags: one for a local JavaScript file (`js/script.js`) and another for the Google Maps API. The script tag for the local JavaScript file was removed.

The script tag for the Google Maps API was reformatted. It was originally written in a single line, but now it spans multiple lines for improved readability. The attributes `async` and `defer` were already present but have been placed on separate lines to enhance clarity. The script tag is now correctly closed, and the formatting change ensures that the script is loaded asynchronously and deferred, which helps improve page load performance by not blocking the HTML parsing.
